It's easy to shave off the pounds with autumn's key piece – the dress. Charlotte Moore shows you how

Gathered, ¾-length sleeves hide gym-phobic arms

A high waistband is great for making shorter legs look longer and leaner

Puffed sleeves emphasise delicate wrists and make hands look feminine

A loud print can make you look bigger, so go for a low-on-tone print in rich colours, which are more slimming

Highlight your narrowest part – your waist! – with a sexy tie detail

Just-below-the-knee hemlines are the most flattering – no matter what your height, your legs will look longer

Batwing sleeves give your torso a V shape and flatter curves, drawing the eye down and giving the illusion of a smaller waist

A cinched-in waist will add curves to your hips and bottom if you have a boyish body, as well as enhancing an already-hourglass shape
